Message from the Librarian

Libraries: Home Away From Home?

We have been wrangling over what our food and drink policy should be for the Libraries. Some believe, as I do, that libraries, in this day of Google being seen as the font of all knowledge, need to change, to become more welcoming, to become more like home if they are to retain their position as the best place on campus to study.

I surfed the WEB and began thinking that food was perhaps the only thing that we (librarians) were working on lately. A Google search for this topic – library AND “food policy” – generated 351,000 hits. I decided to try to put this in the larger perspective and did the same search but instead substituted “copyright policy” for “food policy” and got 1.8 million hits - - so I guess the library world out there is not as food obsessed as it is copyright obsessed.

But the issue of the degree to which food can be consumed in the libraries remains -- particularly in this day and age when all the surveys tell us that fewer and fewer university students are going to libraries to get information. The culprit we all know is the WEB. We are no longer the only source for serious information. The 24X7 full text WEB is where the action is for most of our students. For many librarians, faced with this kind of competition, the issue becomes how to make their library more attractive as THE best study/research destination.

My staff -- all of whom love the libraries in which they work and love the books they select, order, purchase, catalogue, help people find, and preserve – are concerned that a liberalized food policy will have dire consequences.

What's Inside

▶ SUPPORT THE LIBRARIES.....	7	▶ ACCOLADES	16
▶ FEATURED COLLECTION.....	10

My less than scientific WEB viewing of scores of library food policies suggests there are several justifications for loosening up on food and drink policies. The three most prevalent ones seem to be the following:

- Make the library more comfortable, more like home where you can eat, study, talk, etc., all at the same time and in the same place.
- Enable readers with competing study, work, and family demands to do at least two things at the same time: eat and study.
- Stop trying to win a losing battle. Let students eat and get out of the policing business.

Typical of policies at other “liberalizing” North American universities are the following:

BEVERAGES

- Beverages in re-closable, spill-proof, plastic containers may be consumed in the Library with the exception of alcoholic beverages.
- Examples of approved containers are sports bottles, commuter mugs and water bottles. Inappropriate containers include aluminum cans and any cup or bottle which cannot be re-closed.

FOOD (Snacks Only)

- Examples of approved snacks are chocolate bars, nutria-bars, pretzels, and cookies. Snacks that would be considered [ok] are those that do not leave stains or have a strong odour. Litter not disposed of attracts pests which are disastrous to Library materials and equipment. The Library reserves the right to determine which foods are permitted.
- Examples of inappropriate food including, pizzas, French fries, chicken or anything else that could be considered lunch or dinner are not allowed in the Library. In consideration of others, please place refuse in the appropriate receptacles provided in the Library.

Discussions of the topic of food in the library generally generate little to smile about, let alone laugh about, yet I found a couple of things on the WEB that were too good to ignore. The UK Law Library online newsletter noted “The official food and drink policy of the UK Libraries is that no food and only covered beverages are allowed in the libraries. The unofficial UK Law Library rule is that we don't enforce the official policy.”

So we return to the original question, should we make our libraries more like home in an attempt to make members of our university family want to “hang out” there more often? I think we all had the experience as a teenager of visiting friend’s homes where rules abounded: eat only in the kitchen, don’t sit on the beds, no running around, no loud noises, no talking on the phone for long periods of time, etc. Those homes were functional – they provided a roof overhead, but they were not where everyone wanted to congregate. I think we librarians may have to make a choice, we can maintain pristine homes/libraries where nothing is ever out of place or we can loosen up a bit and make our libraries more like our friends’ homes where we wanted to crowd in and have fun. What do you think?

李安的電影《色·戒》，激發市民重新認識張愛玲的著作。港大昨日舉行展覽，展出她的珍貴手稿、相片以至個人物件。知名作家羅繼志亦有參與展覽，她表示，香港經歷過百年殖民風雲，華文往往被忽視，當中許多文化瑰寶，有待市民發掘。張愛玲即是其中一位重要作家，希望市民不要因一齣電影而有歷史起死。

為《色·戒》自辯 張愛玲私物曝光

李安的一部《色·戒》萬眾矚目，原著作者張愛玲也伴一個塵封多年的抽屜，被翻去一週。張愛玲母家香港大學，特別展出了張愛玲的香港傳奇 (1939-41) 展覽。秋白總光臨港大圖書館的展覽，展出一代文壇才女在港大半生緣。最為矚目的是，展覽首次曝光了她1976年發表《談〈色·戒〉》的親筆自辯初稿。她，讓讀者回應外界對《色·戒》的抨擊。同時，還展出她多張手稿、不同版本的著作、相片、證件，以及從未發表過的個人筆記。大部分展品的提供者——張愛玲遺產監理人宋以郎，亦從一件件珍貴遺物中，還原抽屜「窺視」真像，總有許多驚喜。文/攝影：張繼志

Evolving into One by Mr Chung Po Yang

Ceremony marking the Gift of Mr Chung Po Yang's artwork "Evolving into One"

A Ceremony marking the Gift of a painting "Evolving into One" from Co-founder of DHL Express in Asia Pacific division, Mr Chung Po Yang SBS OBE JP was held on 4/F, Main Library on 14 November 2007.

Mr. Chung graduated in USA returned to Hong Kong, joined DHL Express, and co-founded its Asia Pacific division. Mr Chung has held top ranking position with the Hong Kong Trade Development Council; a doyen in international trade he assisted the University of Hong Kong set up a Centre for Asian Entrepreneurship & Business Values in January 2006. He is a committed community service leader, a social entrepreneur, a philanthropist, a patron of the arts and conservation, and now an accomplished painter.

Mr Chung's painting "Evolving into One" is one of the results deriving from his unique technique. It features superimposed mountain peaks in intense motion suggesting an amassing of youthful energies and embodies the spirits of our youths in adversity. The colours used – purple alluding the auspicious stream of "Purple Air coming from the East towards the West" and green captures the essence of success and vitality. This framed painting measuring 233cm wide and 97cm high now adorns a spacious wall in the Main Library of The University of Hong Kong, an institute where the East meets the West.

We were honoured to have Mr Chung to officiate the Ceremony and present the painting to Dr Anthony W. Ferguson, University Librarian.

Celebrating Ms Louisa Li's retirement through Honour with Books Programme

We are grateful that Ms Louisa Li, Careers Counsellor and Director of the Career Education and Placement Centre, letting us celebrate her retirement through the Honour with Books Programme.

We also greatly appreciate the enthusiastic response of her friends to contribute funds to strengthen the Libraries' collection on careers and related subjects. We have acknowledged them with a bookplate and a thank-you letter. Their gifts represent a lasting tribute to Ms Li for her service to students, employers and colleagues as well as her contributions to the career development of past and present students.

Ceremony in recognition of the generous support from Mr To Wai Ping

A Ceremony was held to acknowledge the generous donation of Mr To Wai-ping (BA 1979) to the University Libraries through the Stanley Ho Alumni Challenge. Part of his donation had been used to upgrade equipment in the e-Learning Lab of the Main Library.

"I feel as though I have returned home, because Hong Kong and the University of Hong Kong are the birth place of my knowledge". "我有如遊子歸家，因為香港與香港大學是我知識誕生之地"。 Dr Sun Yat-sen, 1923.

The Libraries now has added neckties and scarves with this poignant Chinese characters "我有如遊子歸家", commemorating Dr Sun Yat-sen's address made at HKU's Loke Yew Hall in 1923, to our collection of souvenirs.

Other souvenirs include greeting cards with illustrations from our rare book collection, the world's only copy of a 1798 edition of George Staunton's An Authentic Account of an Embassy from the King of Great Britain to the King of China, published in 1798. The illustrations give a fascinating account of Lord Macartney's diplomatic mission from 1792 to 1794 to seek an audience with Emperor Qianlong.

You can now own these special souvenirs or buy these as festive gifts for your friends and relatives through mail order (<http://lib.hku.hk/friends/shopping/form.doc>) or purchase directly from HKU Main Library Express Return Counter (Mon-Fri 9am - 4pm or Sun 10am - 4pm)

International Law in Domestic Courts

International Law in Domestic Courts is a regularly updated case reporting service focusing on cases from close to 70 jurisdictions dealing with matters of international law issues, with an archive dating back to 2000.

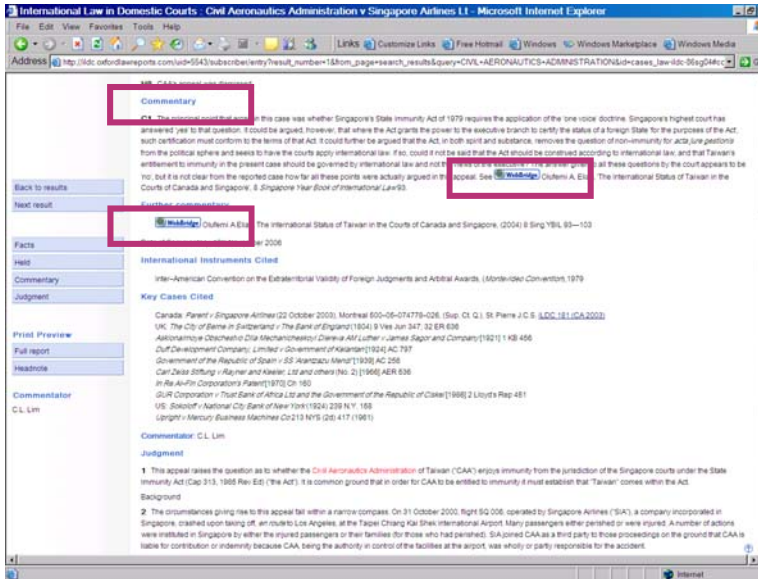

Besides full texts of judgments in their original language, it includes analytical expert commentary which highlights key issues and the most salient points of each case, together with English translations of key sections of non-English language decisions. Updates with new cases are bimonthly and over 150 new cases are added each year.

The image shows a screenshot of the 'International Law in Domestic Courts' website interface in a Microsoft Internet Explorer browser window. The website header includes 'INTERNATIONAL LAW IN DOMESTIC COURTS' and navigation links like 'Home', 'Advanced search', 'Browse', 'Help', 'Site map', and 'Contact us'. A search bar is visible on the left. The main content area displays 'Judicial interpretation' for a case with ILDC Citation: ILDC 263 (CN 2002). A sidebar on the left contains a navigation menu with 'Judgment - Original' highlighted in a red box. Below the menu, there are sections for 'Print Preview', 'Full report', 'Headnote and translation', 'Headnote', and 'Commentator' (Bing Bing Jia). The main text area contains 'Facts', 'Jurisdiction: China', 'ILDC Citation: ILDC 263 (CN 2002)', 'Original Citation: Judicial Interpretation [2002] no 27', 'Date of decision: 27th August 2002', 'Court: The People's Supreme Court', 'Procedural Stage: Interpretation in the abstract by the highest Court in China. Pursuant to the Constitution of the People's Republic of China of 1979, as amended 1983 and 1986, the Supreme Court has the power to interpret the laws of the State.', 'Key Categories: Relationship between international and domestic law', 'Keywords: Aliens, treatment, International law and domestic law, consistent interpretation', 'Core Issues', and a list of two issues.

Overlaid on the bottom right of the website screenshot is a screenshot of an Adobe Reader window displaying a PDF document. The PDF is a public notice from the Supreme People's Court of China, titled '最高人民法院公告' (Supreme People's Court Announcement). The text in the PDF is in Chinese and discusses the court's interpretation of international trade-related administrative cases. It mentions that the interpretation was adopted at the 1239th meeting of the Judicial Committee of the Supreme People's Court on August 27, 2002, and became effective on October 1, 2002. The document lists four categories of cases covered by the interpretation: (一) 有关国际货物贸易的行政案件; (二) 有关国际服务贸易的行政案件; (三) 与国际贸易有关的知识产权行政案件; (四) 其他国际贸易行政案件.

Coverage & potential users

This online service is of particular interest to those teaching, studying and researching private and public international law, human rights and comparative law, including: immunities, individuals and human rights, international criminal law, international economic law, international environmental law, international organizations, international responsibility, law of the sea, law of treaties, organs of the state, relationship between international and domestic law, sources of international law, statehood, state succession, territory, use of force and the law of armed conflict. Given the span of subjects covered, this database will also be useful for those researching international relations and cases involving political disputes.

Functionality highlights

In addition to a Quick search template, its Advanced search options allow searching by:

Jurisdiction (more than 60), Keyword (subject terms assigned to each case summarizing the key issues), Parties, ILDC case number, Dates, and 18 key category (high level categories similar to the main chapter headings in a treatise).

Each case has a well defined structure including fields such as Facts, Held, Commentary, Judgment. Printing can be done for the full report, or limited to only the Headnote section. Hyperlinks are conveniently provided for cases listed under the Key Cases Cited section which are covered in full text in ILDC.

Another useful feature is the embedding of WebBridge function in the Commentary section. Any secondary sources cited in the commentary provided by expert commentators can be conveniently traced against the Libraries' catalogue using this function.

Value of ILDC: comparing with existing resources

Many existing library resources in HKUL contain international law materials, notably international law cases, such as (a) International Legal Materials <<http://library.hku.hk/record=b1407933>>, which covers texts of treaties, UN resolutions and selected judgments from international courts and occasional judgments from US cases on international law; (b) International Law Reports <<http://library.hku.hk:80/record=b1417933>> which includes judgments from international courts and tribunals and from domestic courts; (c) Lexis.com and Westlaw International also offer coverage of various jurisdictions, primarily UK and the US. These are, however, not selected or indexed for relevance to international law and, for non-English language judgments, do not have commentaries or translations into English.

ILDC policy is to cover case law not only from states but from certain territorial entities that are not generally classified as states, in recognition of the fact that judicial decisions of such entities can be of interest to international law, as recognized among others by the International Court of Justice and the European Court of Human Rights. ILDC is thus useful as a one-stop source for researchers to pinpoint specific legal issues and to compare how they have been treated across multiple jurisdictions or entities -- a painstaking process and one that often may not be comprehensive, if it were to be done separately on scattered resources.

To access International Law in Domestic Courts, search by Title on Dragon, HKUL catalogue, or click this link <http://library.hku.hk/record=b3742241>.

Library Updates

Loan Quota and Dependent Children Library Cards

The Libraries is delighted to let you know that the loan quota of all non-academic staff members has been increased to 24 books and 6 AV items in November. Borrowing privileges have also been extended to dependent children of HKU staff members. To be eligible for a library card, a dependent child has to be above 16 and below 25 years of age. For a dependent child who is between 19 and 25 years of age, a document to show full-time study is also needed. This card allows borrowing of 24 books, 6 AV items and access to electronic resources on-site. Details of borrowing privileges can be viewed at <http://lib.hku.hk/general/borrowing/#60>. To submit applications electronically please visit http://lib.hku.hk/cgi-bin/check_form/SDCCA-form

New Network Printing System

In mid October, HKU Libraries launched a new and improved network printing system which supports payments by Octopus and Copykey cards. This new system is faster than the old system with a speed of 30 pages per minute on both B&W and colour printing. It also supports multiple pages printing on a single page that the old system could not do.

The new system comes with all new colour printers. If a print job is sent to a colour printer and has some color pages only, the new system will charge the colour printing rate, for only the colour pages. The Libraries reduced the colour printing charge rate from HK$4.5 to HK$3.3 at the same time of the system launch.

The user guide of the new system can be found on the technical support page of the Knowledge Navigator Centre (<http://lib.hku.hk/techsupport/knc.html>).

The existing computer printing card system will run in parallel with this new system until 1 Apr 2008. Refund of any remaining balance on a valid printing card will begin shortly.

Note: The Copykey card is a supplementary payment method to support visitors who do not have Octopus cards or those who need receipts after printing or photocopying. It can be borrowed from the Main or Branch Libraries. Users will pay the charges upon return of the card.

Payment by Octopus Card

The Libraries is pleased to announce that library users can use Octopus Cards for payments in the Main Circulation and Registration Counters from 2008 onwards. Payments, which are under HK$500, for overdue fines and purchase of souvenirs will be accepted.

ITSA Help for Computer Problems at Main Library

Since November 2007, Information Technology Student Ambassador (ITSA), Computer Society, HKUSU and the Libraries has collaborated in providing a helpdesk service for solving computer related problems at the Main Library.

The helpdesk is now temporarily closed during the term break and will be back to service in January 2008 when the second semester starts. If you have any computer problems or other related enquiries, you are most welcome to visit the ITSA helpdesk at:

Venue: G/F Main Library (next to Ref Counter)

Win a $500 ParknShop Coupon by Completing the LibQual+ Survey

The Libraries has conducted a user survey during the period from 12 November through to 2 December, 2007 . This survey is based on a quality audit instrument developed in North America, also used in Europe and Australia , and now being pioneered in Hong Kong at all eight UGC institutions. Results from this survey will enable us to benchmark our services against those of other libraries in universities throughout the world, so that we can build the quality you deserve and need.

In appreciation for the time of the participants, we offered them the chance to win a HK$500 Park'nShop gift coupon or one of 50 of the Libraries souvenirs <http://lib.hku.hk/friends/shopping/index.html>. The winner of the gift coupon is Mr Ivan Gui.

Coming Book Sale

We are glad that the coming book sale will be held on 19 -20 January 2008. Close to 10,000 books which are either duplicates donated by our supporters or unneeded copies of books from the library collection will be sold at HK$20 and up.

We believe that selling these books at very reasonable prices not only promotes reading but insures that these books do not lie unused and forgotten. The proceeds from the book sale will be used to purchase new books and to enhance the services of the Libraries.
